THE CIVIC PARADE.

Seventy-Five Thousand Men in Line and Over a Million People on the Sidewalks. CHICAGO, Oct. 20.-Last night society set the glittering seal of her approval on the world's fair. To-day it was the turn of the people to express their approbation, and they did it in a manner that will become historical. Of Chicago's population one in twenty marched in a grand civic parade. The other nineteen, reinforced by a half million visitors from outside points, stood on the sidewalk, packed the streets, perched on roofs and window-sills, and jammed the various stands along the line of march to see him do it. And they saw him, too-75,-000 of him. The gigantic procession passed through the streets without an instant's delay, always moving swiftly, and it owned the streets from the curb to curb. despite the desperate crowd of spectators that pushed and shoved in the desire to see as much as posssible of the pride and pomp of Chicago's civic societies. The crowd was something fearful. Chicago has at different times handled many a throng of visitors, but this one was away beyond anything she ever dealt with before. It is estimated that at least 1,200,000 people viewed the parade, and after it was over and done the majority of the down-town restaurants were compelled to close their doors until they could attend to those who had already gained admittance. It was not a steady flow; it was a congestion that created the temporary difficulty in the manner of obtaining eatables. In the main, however, Chicago was equal to the occa-Bion. Her parade, immense as it was, never for an instant got away, and in all that drawn-out marching horde every man went by the reviewing stand, and he went at a good swift pace. Naturally there were accidents, fainting women, children trampled upon, and here and there a man dropping from a roof, but these are the aftermath of every gathering such as was seen on Chicago's streets to day. The pomade few arrests, and of all the features of a great day for this city their excellent work stands high on the list. The parade was composed as follows: First Division-Police, Sousa's Marine Band, the Mexican National Band, General Miles and his aids, the Chicago Huzzars, municipal officers, Governors of States.

Second Division-Twelve thousand members of the Independent Order of Foresters; the Italian societies; a gigantic float representing Columbus discovering America, showing the Santa Maria approaching a rock-bound coast, upon which a number of Indians stood eagerly scanning the approaching vessel; three hundred Grecians; 8,000 members of the Patriotic Order Bons of America; the Orangemen's societies, 4,000 curriers; 500 German veterans; 3,700 cotchmen in kilts and with bagpipes shricking, sons of St. George, 2.000 Poles, 5.000 Swedes, 2,000 high-school boys, 800 ex-soldiers, followed by a float representing the Monitor as she appeared before fighting the Merrimac; Sons of eterans, Modern Woodmen and uniformed

Third Division-Uniformed Knights of St. Patrick, 8,000 uniformed Foresters, 2,000 Hibernians, 10,000 members of miscellaneous Catholic societies, ending with a float called "Columbia," the lower platform of which was embellished with the coat of arms of the Catholic Order of Foresters. On the main platform stood forty-four columns, each surmounted by a gilt star, representing the States of the Union. In the center was a huge globe, above which rested a bust of Columbus. Three young ladies, representing Friendship, Love and Truth, were on

SCENES DURING THE MARCH.

The parade was scheduled to start from Michigan avenue and Van Buren street at 10:45 A. M. This would bring it past the reviewing-stand and the federal building thirty minutes later, but despite the utmost efforts of Grand Marshal Miles and his aids, it was exactly twenty-three minntes after 12 o'clock when Chief of Police McClaughrey, at the head of the parade. brought his baton up to salute Vice-president Morton, who reviewed the parade on s tastefully-decorated stand, where he was surrounded by representatives of foreign governments and a throng of brilliantlydressed ladies. As the different Governors of the States passed the reviewing-stand, some on horseback and others in carriages. each was greeted with a succession of cheers which kept him bowing for many minutes. The crowd was impartial in politics, and yelled as lustily for Flower of New York, whose iron-grey hair was bared to the breeze during the greater portion of his ride, as it did for McKinley of Qhio. Just before Mckinley's carriage was compelled to halt a little gamin, clinging to a lamp-post, shouted: "Stand up, there, McKinley, so we can see you. A roar of laughter followed the shrilltoned suggestion, and a broad smile went over the Governor's countenance as he gracefully took the hint and rose to his feet to bow his acknowledgement of the cheers and applause of the crowd. After the dignitaries had gone came the rank and file of the parade, and in a formation of ten files wide in double rank they rolled like a huge human wave past the reviewing-stand for almost exactly three hours. As each successive body reached the east side of the federal building it was greeted by one thousand little girls arranged in the shape of and draped in the colors of the American flag. Each little tot carried in her hand a diminutive banner, and as the sweet childish voices arose to cheer the marching men these little pieces of bunting would flutter wildly. It was a beautiful and inspiring sight and not once did the little ones fail to receive an acknowledgement of their kindly greeting. The Indian boys from the Industrial School at Carlisle, Pa., created enthusiastic cheers as they came by. They carried long yellow poles, upon the end of which were fastened models of various tools emblematic of the different trades. The coppercolored lads marched exceedingly well and their neat grey uniforms showed them off to advantage. The German Turners, a mass of sinewy, stalwart, young fellows in grey coats, trousers and soft drab felt hats were a handsome body of men. The barelegged Scots, as they swung along behind an aggregation of screeching bagpipes. were all good men to see. Then there came as though there was no end thousands upon thousands of Poles, with their purple four-cornered caps, Swedish societies seemingly without limit, Sons of St. George, Sons of St. Patrick, Sons of Garibaldi, and various and sundry other bands of sons of almost every country and of every clime

Eight little girls, in dark-blue dresses adorned with gold braid, each carrying a small flag, made a protty salute as they fluttered past the Vice-president, and that gentleman, who had been compelled by weariness to resume his chair, sprang quickly to his feet, bowed gracefully and the eight proud and happy little souls went marching on. The Foresters were seemingly without limit, the independent and Catholic orders both being out in force. They made, in point of numbers, almost one-quarter of the entire parade. The weather was admirable for the parade. The sun shone warmly during the early portion of the day, but later the sky was overcast, and to the many spectators who stood hour after hour watching the stream flow past the fresh porthern breeze was a trifle uncomfortable; but for the men who bore the burden of the day the temperature could not have been better adjusted. They did their work surpassingly well, and in on the inhabitable globe.

its doing they honored themselves, the city and the vast horde of strangers within her

BANQUET TO VISITORS.

A Distinguished Body of Men Entertained by the Fellowship Club. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20 .- Statesmen and diplomates, prelates and litterateurs, eminent wearers of the judicial ermine, Senators, Representatives, Governors and merchant princes passed the loving cup one to the other to-night, and in quaffing its contents wished life and happiness to the Fellowship Club of Chicago. It was a great social function. Never before have thirty Governors of as many States in the Union, chief executives differing in politics, and, it may be, imbued with more or less sectional feeling, sat together at the same festive board. Never before, not even in the capital of the Republic, have so many representatives of the science of diplomacy clinked glasses and sipped to the health of one another. As a social function it was a

The banqueting hall at Kinsleys presented a pretty picture with its hun-dreds of flags, thousands of electric-bulb lamps and profusion of hot-house plants. But the feature of the decorations that attracted the greatest attention and was productive of the greatest enthusiasm, was the Administration Building in miniature. It rested upon a low platform in the middle of the hall. Fronting it was a miniature inlet and a grand canal, both filled with water and between them a lovely pier of green sward hedged

The banquet began at 7 o'clock. A few moments before President James W. Scott, with Vice-president Morton leaning on his arm, had led the procession through the corridor and into the brillantly lighted hall. Covers were laid for 160 guests. Vicepresident Morton had the seat of honor to the right of the president, and his eminence, Cardinal Gibbons, sat on the left. Near the Vice-president sat Chauncy M. Depew, ex-President Hayes and Baron Fava, dean of the dip-lomatic corps, while Cardinal Gibbons counted among his neighbors Whitelaw Reid, Secretary of State John W. Foster, Postmaster-general John Wanamaker, the Chinese minister, Archbishop Ireland and Minister Lincoln. The guests seated at the connecting table included most of the members of the diplomatic corps, General Schofield, Senator Sherman, Henry Watterson, Channey M. Depew, Bishop Fowler of California, all of the visiting Governors, the Judges of the Supreme Court, Secretaries Tracy and Noble, Attoney-general Miller, Justices Harlan and Brewer, Richard Watson Gilder, Richard Harding Davis, and George W. Childs, of the Philadelphia

SPEECHES BY DEPEW AND OTHERS. After the guests had been seated President Scott introduced Cardinal Gibbons, who said grace. After the feast the notables were introduced. When Whitelaw Reid was introduced, without regard for politics, the company shouted in unison. Ex-President Haves received perhaps the longest continued demonstration by the company. Speeches were made by President Scott, Vice-president Morton, Secretary of State Foster, Baron Fava, Chiefjustice Euiler, Governor McKinley, Mayor Washburne and Chauncey M. Depew. The latter spoke as follows:

Whenever I am in Chicago I find, no matter what subject is before the house, it receives a local flavor. When I meet a Chicago man anywhere in the world, no matter on what subject we converse, it returns to Chicago. Chicago has reason to be proud of her citizens. The best results and most significant of all that can be produced in the most condensed form of what has hapened from the discovery of America is the city itself. I feel, whenever I met a Chicago man anywhere, that he thoroughly appreciates that fact. When I arrived here to-night several gentlemen connected with the press met me, and the first question which they asked was "What do you think of Chicage?" The next question was "What do you think of the parade to-day." I said I did not get here until after the parade was over. "Well," said this undaunted knight of the pen, "what would you have thought if you had seen it!" [Continued laughter.] Chicago in itself has more religious than any other city in the world; it has more religious and less religious than any city in the world. It condenses in its civilization precisely all the civil and religious liberty which this this country has produced. There is a tradition that, when Columbus landed on San Salvador the native chief turned to his tribe and said: "Ladies and gentlemen, all is lost, we are discovered." [Great laughter.] The mission of Chicago is to be perpetually discovered. [Great

Whitelaw Reid was next introduced and paid a glowing tribute to the world's fair, saying that the exposition would clearly surpass any previous exposition which the world has seen, as far as our friends in Chicago believed that they surpassed any city on the continent. Mr. Eugene Field recited his well-known poem, "The Shell Upon the Mountain." Marshall P. Wilder entertained the comtect Richard M. Hunt, of New York, was introduced. Mr. Hunt's remarks were followed by the singing of the fellowship drinking song, after which Mr. Keppler, of Puck, and the Rev. Dr. McCook spoke briefly, and the banquet closed with an entertainment by Frank Lincoln. A reception was tendered to the Chief-justice and associate justices of the Supreme Court of the United States by the Chicago Bar Association this afternoon at the Calumet Club.

The reception and ball tendered to the visiting civic and military visitors at Sixteenth-street Armory, to-night, was a brilliant social function. The guests began to arrive shortly before 9 o'clock, and the ball was still in full blast at 2 o'clock A. M. Both the participating local and visiting militia officers appeared in full dress uniform, with side arms. Vice-president Morton dropped in for a few moments after leaving the Fellowship Club banquet, and the majority of the guests of the latter function followed in his wake. To-morrow will be the great Columbian dedication day proper, when the big programme for which the whole country has been preparing for months will be given at Jackson Park. The great parade will start at 9:30 o'clock. The manufacturers' building on the fair ground, besides being the objective point of at least 125,000 people who are fortunate holders of invitations and cards of admission, will be a Mecca for multitudes whose only hope is to catch a glimpse through some unlooked for combination of circumstances in their favor. At the close of the programme on the grounds the audience will disperse to witness the displays of fire-works in the parks, and those who have tickets to the Auditorium will listen to Archbishop Ireland and other speakers who are to inaugurate the work of the World's congress auxiliary. Channeey M. Depew and wife arrived at the Auditorium early this evening. They were accompanied by Whitelaw Reid and his secretary, who were driven to the Grand Pacific. Mr. Depew predicts that the cerementes to-morrow will not be concluded before 9 o'clock in the evening. For business within a radius of five hundred miles, to-day has been the biggest and busiest one the railroads of Chicago ever experienced. So far as known there has not been a single accident of any consequence. Everything moved with the regplarity and smoothness of clock work. Among the preminent arrivals to-day was the Rt. Rev. Francis Chatard, of Indianapolis.

Minor Celebrations.

In the unfinished 2:19 trot Martha Wilkes was favorite in the fourth heat, but could only run third, the heat going to Hamlin's Nightingale, whose time-2:10-was the best made in a trotting race during the meeting, and lowered Nightingale's record from 2:144. Nightingale was made favorite the next heat, but was beaten out in an exciting finish by Greenleaf, who took the heat and the race. In the unfinished 2:25 trot Wardwell won the race in straight heats. THE BRIGGS CASE.

Majority and Minority Reports Submitted to the New York State Synod. ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 20 .- The principal business of the Presbyterian Synod to-day was the report of the judicial committee. Regarding the report of the New York Presbytery, the committee recommended the approval of its report, with the exception of those portions touching on the Briggs controversy. Dr. David G. Wylie, of New York, moved that the approval of the minutes of that presbytery be postponed until the meeting of the synod next year. The motion was put and carried with not one dissenting voice.

A resolution expressing sympathy for President Harrison on account of the illness of Mrs. Harrison, was adopted by a rising vote. The report of the judicial committee to allow Dr. McLeod, of Boston, to withdraw his appeal was adopted. The committee reported that the prosecuting committee of the New York Presbytery wished to withdraw its appeal from the action of that presby tery in dismissing the charges against Dr. Briggs. This the committee could not favor, as all those who signed the appeal had not signed the request to withdraw it. The committee, therefore, decided that the appeal was in order, Elder Yearance, of New York, moved that permission be given to withdraw the appeal, and after some debate his motion was adopted.

The majority report of the committee on the two complaints of Dr. Briggs and his friends was then taken up. Before proceeding further the report of the minority members was submitted. The latter was signed by four minister, and the former by eleven. The difference between the two reports is that the minority report makes no recommendations, but simply brings the case before the synod for its action. A hot discussion followed the receipt of the minority report, but several facetious delegates, with their timely humor, kept the assemblage in a peaceful frame of mind throughout. Both reports were accepted. Elder Yearance then moved the adoption of the majority report Several other motions and a long discussion followed. Dr. Brown, who is professor of Hebrew in the Union Theological Seminary, and Dr. Briggs's special champion on the floor of the synod, was one of the speakers. He said, in part: This complaint involves a constitutional question of great importance. Whether the errors against Dr. Briggs are real errors are not now to be discussed. The action of the General Assembly is no bar to the entertainment of this complaint by the synod. The prosecuting committee had no existence or function apart from the action of the New York Presbytery, nor right to appeal to the General Assembly against a decision of the presbytery. The General Assembly did not decide on the standing and authority of the committee. This question we ask you to settle here. If you take no action it would strike a deadly blow at constitutional liberty in our church, and leave the way open to centralization and usurpation. I am anxious, in all calmness and in all seriousness, not to persuade you to exhibit narrow and petty feelings, but to urge you to restore and maintain that just balance of representation and powers distributed among our different courts, which recent proceedings have threatened, if not actually impaired. The complaint now before you acts as a stay until the synod decides that the committee has a right to Union Seminary May Lose a Million. NEW YORK, Oct. 20 .- Anxiety is felt by the nineteen directors of Union Theological Semi nary who voted to sever the seminary's connection with the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church as to the disposition of over $1, 000,000, which was donated to that institution during its loyalty to the General Presbyterian Assembly. It is possible that action may be instituted against the seminary, taking the funds from it and placing it in the hands of Rev. Dr. Booth. Inasmuch as Dr. Booth's resignation from the directorate is likely to occur in the near future, the remaining directors feel uneasy. Dr. Booth's position is well known. He held from the first that the contract made by the seminary with the General Assembly in 1870 could not be abrogated in good faith.

Rev. Dr. Thomas Hastings, president of the seminary faculty and ex-member of the board of trustees, laughed when asked about the forfeiture of the endownments. "In the first place," said he, "our accounts were all made without any conditions whatever, consequently they cannot be considered as dependent upon any action of the seminary. In the second place, not a single one of the donors, as far as I know, has had any fault to find with our action in reference to Dr. Briggs. Of the $800,000 in endownments. $400,000 was bequeathed by ex-Governor Morgan, $300,000 by James Brown, $50,000 by the late Mr. Fayerweather, $5,000 by Russell Sage $5,000 by Marillus Hatley and the balance came from various sources. John Crosby Brown, son of James Brown, is a member of our board of trustecs, and voted with us."

Prohibition Indorsed by Christians, NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 20.-The closing session of the General Christian Missionary Convention here was taken up by reports of standing committees. The committee on ways and means recommended especially that the work be more thoroughly advertised everywhere, and that the work in the New England States, where the Christian Church is weak, be pushed to the utmost. A substantial subscription was voted for this purpose. The committee on resolutions condemned the anti-Chinese bill, and indorsed the prohibition cause. The address of the day was a discourse on church extension by Rev. F. D. Power. The convention adjourned to meet in Chicago one year from date.

Doings of Episcopalians. BALTIMORE, Oct. 20 .- The Protestant Episcopal Church, through its general convention, selected a board of missions yesterday, and entered its formal protest against the policy and enstom of the United States government of making appropriations for the support of Indian schools under denominational control. It also indersed the effort to secure an amendment to under denominational control. It also the United States Constitution. This action was taken at the request of the National League for the Protection of American Churches, and was intended as a rebuke to the governmental tendency of partnership in ecclesiastical matters.

CAR-SERVICE ASSOCIATIONS

Good Thing for the Railroad, but Sometimes Injurious to the Shipper.

The Latter Often Subject to Serious Loss through Delay in Switching, but if He is Not Prompt in Unloading He Is Mulcted.

In the report of the last meeting of the Indiana Car-service Association, mention was made that there was considerable friction. No one questions that the associations are beneficial to a certain extent, but, after all, their operation is one-sided. If a shipper or consigues holds a car for loading or unleading over forty-eight hours he is charged $1 a day demurrage; when the railroad holds his car in its yards a week or six weeks, the consignee has no recourse, nor does the shipper, who is anxlous to have a car placed for loading. At the present time, grain men, lumber dealers and brick makers, to say nothing of manufacturers generally, are much troubled by the diliatoriness of the roads in furnishing cars or delivering them on switches when shipped in here loaded with any articles used by the various industries. Yesterday a car load of grain was delivered to the consignee, which was shipped from a station 128 miles from Indianapolis, Sept. 28; by the decline in grain the shipper is out $23 on this car, and for some days it has been standing on an Indianapolis side-track. Grain shipped from here often stands on side-tracks within the city limits for some days; ten days would seem ample time to get grain from Indianapolis to New York or Philadelphia, yet cases are given where it has taken, recently, six weeks, and three cars were delivered this week which were billed nine weeks ago; the decline on the product amounted to over $100, but the shipper has no recourse for damages. In this city building has been stopped for two or three days at a time because brick or stone was not placed on the switches after arrival; the same is true as regards lumber, yet these very shippers or consignees are charged $1 a day if, after a car is placed, it TOOL MANUFACTURING CO. is not loaded or unloaded within fortyeight hours.

A high official, ip speaking of the lack of harmony in the Indiana Car-service Association on certain questions, said: "I am strongly in favor of car-service associations, but I think there are cases where the agent of a road should have power to re-fund demurrage charges. To illustrate: When a road, through contributory negligence or lack of power to do switching, places ten or fifteen loaded cars at one time on a side-track, when a consignee can unload but three to five cars per day, he should be exempt from paying demurrage, as it is more the company's fault than that of the consignee. As the rules now stand no such exemption can be allowed unless the railroad company ignores the rules of the association, as has one of the Indianapolis roads."

Little Probability of a Strike, E. A. Peck, general superintendent of the Big Four lines, returned yesterday frem Cleveland. He says there will be no strike on the Big Four lines at Cleveland, where it was reported the strike would be inaugurated. The men are good men on the road, and 70 per cent. of the Cleveland switchmen own homes, have never struck unless in sympathy with other strikers, and in those cases remained quietly at home and returned when it was safe for them to work. A Journal reporter was last evening informed that the talk of a strike on the Big Four and Pennsylvania lines grew out of a movement of the switchmen on the Pennsylvania lines looking to making ten hours a day's work. At Columbus, Cincinnati. Indianapolis and Cleveland, on the Big Four, ten hours constitutes a day's work, while on the Pennsylvanta lines twelve hours is the rule, and the switchmen on the Pennsylvania lines will simply ask that the hours be made uniform on all roads at the points above named.

Boston capitalists are investing largely in stocks and securities of the Evansville & Terra Haute, the Chicago & Eastern Illinois and the Louisville, New Albany & Chicago roads. The parties who are doing so have, in the past, made large profits out of the two first named fines. A movement is on foot looking to a change in the general manager of the Indiana Car-service Association. Disinterested parties say too much has been expected from the general manager of this association. The general manager needs an assistant, under the title of superintendent, who should look after the car-service business outside of the office. Superintendent Manskeld, of the Indianapolis

& Vincennes, has secured several oil tanks in which to haul water for the company's locomotives on the lower end of the road, and to run steam engines at the coal mines. These tanks carry five thousand gallens, or about as much as two locomotive tanks. At Indianapolis and Martinsville are the only stations on the road where there is plenty of water for locomotives. The Chicago Railroad Association has finished its work of compiling the passenger rate sheet to go into effect Nov. 1. Numerous changes were made in the rates. Besides the advance between Chicago, St. Louis and Missouri points there was a general increase in rates throughout the territory embraced in the rate sheet, extending as far west as the Pacific coast and as far south as the

A recent statement shows that of the total tonnage carried by the New York Central road only one-seventh is through business, one-sixth goes north and west, and five-sixths east and south. Of the way-freight, the tonnage north and west makes up more than half of the total. Coal and coke make up a little more than one-fourth of the total tonnage, and grain one-third. Lumber, agricultural products and merchandise each make up about 8 per cent.

The Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton inspection party will reach here early this afternoon. But lew inspection parties so thoroughly examine the road-bed, bridges, trestles, stations, etc., as does the C., H. & D. party, giving five days to the inspection of 600 miles of main line. The company, in the last few months, has spent a good deal of money on its recently acquired lines in northern and eastern Ohio, and this work was carefully examined. Several hours were spent at the shops of the company and in examining the various important yards.

The rumor sent out from Cincinnati to the effeet that D. B. Martin was to be retired and several other official changes to be made on the Big Four has caused so much uneasiness that President ingalis and Traffic Manager Murray have appounced that no changes are contemplated, and there will not be any. Mr. Murray says no one has been approached or even thought of as 0.10 successor to Mr. Martin, the matter not having 0.02 been broached since the consolidation. Another -0.08official says the Big Four's passenger business has been phenomenal, each month this year increasing over corresponding months of previous years. The first week in October there was an increase in passenger, carnings over the corresponding week of 1891 or $13,768. The receipts from the executsion business alone of September reached $80,000, and the expense of securing this large business has been kept at a minimum.

ENGLISH'S-"ACROSS THE POTOMAC." The initial performance of "Across the Potomac," a new military drama, was presented last evening at English's before a fair audience. "Across the Potomac" is a thrilling five-act drama, based, as its name implies, on events connected with the civil war. The story is well written, the action lively, there are gay uniforms, flags, and gunpowder galore and the interest never lags from the marchin g out of the hero's company in 1861 until the hero gets away by a very narrow margin from being shot as a spy, in 1865.
The leading parts are in the hands of very capable people. Capt. Ralph Baker, the gallant young federal colonel, is admirably presented by Boyd Putnam, while Miss Heurietta Landeris equally capable as Edith Garland, the colonel's sweetheart. John H. Bunny, as Ebenezer Short, is responsible for the comedy part, and is fully equal to the requirements of the situation. "Across the Potomac" will be repeated to-night and to-morrow night, with matinees both after-

Heavy Fallure in the Grocery Trade, NEW YORK, Oct. 20,-Charles Burkhalter & Co., wholesale grocers at Nos. 121 and 123 Hudson street, falled to-day with liabilities which may reach $700,000. Charles Burkhalter and John H. Burkhalter, who compose the firm made a general assignment through Stern & Rushmere, attorneys, to Charles H. Fancher, president of the Irving National Bank. They gave preferences aggregating $183,167. All the preferences are for borrowed money. The business is a very old one, having been established in 1829, has passed through several generations and various changes in this time. The firm has claimed right along that they were worth $300. 000 over and above all liabilities. Mr. Burkhalter said the assets are nominally larger than the liabilities, but what they would bring depouded on the inventory which would be made by the assignce. The failure has caused a great deal of excitement among the creditors, and some severe criticism. The firm has always stood well in trade circles, and the trade sold well. On the strength of this reputation, it is said, they have borrowed large sums of money up to within a day or two of their failure. They also bought goods on credit this week.
